

Road. Well, everybody that come by here, you know. To go to old Wauhillau or stop and have a drink, you know and talk awhile. That was all. Road went out that way, left. One of 'em went out this way. One went east.

(Well.)

A nice place to go trading was down at old Wauhillau.

(Well.)

When I was a kid, you know.

(Yeah.)

They finally built the store down here. Call it, the Bidding Creek Store.

(Yeah.)

Bidding Spring. Then they built one (words not clear) a fella, a real fella. I think he built that store down there at Bidding Springs. Way on up the creek from there from the water tower.

(Uh-huh)

And two branches, two creeks down there, one over east (word not clear) An old fella name of Battle, who, across the old creek (Low) He finally built the store over there.

(Uh-huh)

Then his wife died and he sold out. Then when he sold out, he moved off. Died. Only other store (static) all I know.

(Yeah, I think I've heard of that.)

Yeah, Tom.

(Turnbull.)

Turnbull. Tom Turnbull. Had an old wooden wheel there then. I remember we used to -- We was down there one time. He had an organ, you know. He liked to play that organ. He'd come down there. Like to play that organ.

(Yeah.)
