

in Tahlequah.

(Yeah.)

Third man's voice: He was part Indian too, wasn't he?

Yeah.

Third man's voice: He was one of the best lawyers in that country too.

That's right. He's buried in Tahlequah. That Tahlequah cemetery. That's where he was buried. W.W. Hastings. He was congressman long, long time.

Third man's voice: Oh yeah, he was a smart man.

You bet your life he was. Yeah, W. W. was a smart man.

Third man's voice: Yes, he was.

(They had a lot of smart men in those days now.)

You bet! cha.

(Person just wants to start studying about 'em.)

Third man's voice: Those Wylies was all smart men too.

And if I'm not mistaken there's just one of them Wylies living. And he's in bad shape. He's Percy Wylie's boy.

(Well.)

HASTINGS HELPED TO GET INDIAN HOSPITAL

And I've heard this. I don't know how true it is. I've been wondering this.

College was going to buy that Indian hospital. Who would have the right to sell it? They claim its a Indian hospital. W. W. Hastings pulled for it.

I was wondering now who would have the right to sell it.

Third man's voice: That the $64 question.

I believe it ought'n be sold. It ought to be right where its at.

(Static -- words not clear.)

No, I didn't. I just thought now. Who would have the right to sell it.

(Tape skip.) do it all the time, but still. By the way they ought'n to
