

And I don't know where they came from. The Vanns and the Rosses, Hanks and Smiths. We's all pretty close together.

(Yeah)

We wasn't related to the Vanns though. But we was the rest of 'em. There were some Morgans over there. You take this Rogers families. They all raised in there. Now Rogers must have come in here when we did because they had Papa--Papa called her aunt something. But hse had our old family Bible and I never did get it. They brought it when they come out there, see, and she had it.

(Well.)

It seem to me like Papa always called her Aunt "Check". I don't know. I guess her name was Cherokee.

(Yeah.)

Sould like it. But there was plenty of those Vanns spent a lot of this outlaw time.

(There were.. Well. Was that, oh the Smith bunch that Redbird Smith was with?)

Who?

(Redbird Smith.)

No, it wasn't that bunch.

(It was a different bunch.)

Now, I tell your daddy knows who was related to 'em. They's all good people. They belong up in Gooseneck Bend.

(Yeah.)

Oh Keenewly Smith and Vann Smith, Jimmy Smith. There's a bunch of those boys. They were related to this bunch down here. (static) That's the only man that ever got old Judge Parker to turn him loose.

(Well.)
