

world--the sun. Boy, there's lots to that, you know, but I can't tell it.

PLACING OF CEREMONIAL PARAPHENALIA IN SUN DANCE LODGE

(Then after they got those rafter-poles up into position, they started putting brush up around the sides, and then they started taking down that Rabbit Tipi. And I think there were four men that walked out of that Rabbit Tipi and they were carrying things--that buffalo skull and what looked like a bundle--it looked like a rawhide pouch about like this, and I think that buffalo skin and then that hoop that has the eagle feathers on it--the medicine wheel, and some other things. And they came around to the east side and walked in the main entrance--)

They bring it and put it in there.

(Is it permitted to go up and look closer at those things?)

You stand on the outside of that and you can watch. No cameras and no pencils. Just so you don't get in their way.

(They had a cedar tree out behind the Rabbit Tipi. And later on I noticed there was a cedar tree stuck in the ground close to the altar. Is that the same cedar tree?)

I don't know. It might be the same cedar tree. It ain't very tall.

(No, it was a little old tree.)

And after the Sun Dance is over--you know where the altar is--they put all their headbands and all their stuff, and put them on the rack there.

(Then what happens to them?)

Different ones takes parts off for souvenirs. That's when the souvenir hunters goes in there. They tell them what they can take and what they can't take.

(Who, the priests?)

Yeah.
