
allotment right east of town: It adjoined--ran right up to the (rest of sentence not clear). Right easst of town there, and Looking Glass, he was a Comanche Chief. He lived on $\mathrm{T}^{\text {he }}$ had a big white house. Live a quarter south of us.. I think' this belong to one of his wife and children-had severtal children. I'm not sure about that.
(His name was Féared Looktng Glass.) *
Feared Looking, Glass, yeah. And the Indians had a lot of pow-wow's there., And they came every few months, put up tents, you know. All along the hillside up there, which is only just three-eights of a mile where our house was. This old house--this old house sitting on that place. My mother staid'they úsed, to scalp people someplaces. Ready to go on the war path. (laughs) You know she--
(That was to her, that was a legitimate fear, you know.)
Oh yeah, oh yeah.
(And I imagine they were kinda fierce down here years ago then.)
Yeah, but that was the first-one minute trouble. That was a Comanche camp up there mostly Comanches in that area right there.
(Imagine you can hear them when they were having those pow-wows.)
Őh, yeah! ' Just across the creek over there about three-eights of a mile. And they stomp about every night, you know: I don't know if they had them every night, they didn't have them eyery night. They kill theif'beef, you know. You could see-them over there, but course we didn't go near it naturally. I guess there -' was, oh, probably 25 or 40 tents over there. $A$ don'i know how many-quite a number on the hillside.
"(That railroad was already--I wonder what time that railroad came through?)
I think the railroad was put in 1900 I believe. County school superintendent-' I don't know whether they can help you here with this school district; determine about this burial ground or not, you know. I was almost positive it's a Comanche cemetery. I couldn't tell you for sure. I believe it'was, 'cause that is Com$. anche terrifory. There ought to be some records, someplace. I don't know.
