

INDIAN HILL SCHOOL - ARROWS AND ARTIFACTS FROM SITE

They call it--they name the school Indian Hill. That's what they call the school.

(Indian Hill School.)

District 148.

(Oh.)

Well, let's see a legal term of the district.

(Very many teachers then?)

Well, the last one, when I went to school here--there was Gilbert. A lady by the name of Louise Gilbert. That's when I finish up the 8th grade. And my brother--brother-in-law taught here on two occasions. He taught the year before. He's A. P. Black. He taught another term.

(Wonder what this little thing is right here? You know this--)

I don't know. Must have been someone out here doing some surveying. This stake here, they survey this and this stake they didn't pull up. And put this line through.

(Imagine this place--brings back many memories to you doesn't it?)

Yeah, I went here from--actually we come over (not clear) when we were down south here. Before 1911 through 1917. (inaudible)--spring of '17, yeah.

(When you all were going to school here?)

Spring of '18, before I was 15 years old.

(Oh! Did you ever--any Indians--did they--I mean when they--you never see any old Indians come here did you?)

No, not on any occasion did I ever see one come here. But several years, picked up these beads. That's around this--

(Yeah.)

Right here. I don't imagine the graves has been--they must have been around 1900 they had the cemetery. There was no fences, no nothing, just--

(I imagine was--that house--that house wasn't there?)
