

Maybe my folks, maybe my kids. And I guess lots of people is that way. They commence, you know, to tell me--

Maggie: That's the way her. She can tell. I do too.

And he commence to (inaudible). And I can't get which way (inaudible). My mind's all right. Sometimes, I have to go see about it.

Maggie: It bother her, you know. That's the way I am too, you know.

(In other words, you get a feeling about something.)

Maggie: Until you find out, she's okay.

(Until you find out what it is.)

COMMENTS ABOUT CHILDREN - HOUSECLEANING AND HEALTH

Maggie: Well, I'm so glad, you know, them little kids stay with her, you know, and she love them kids. That's what Lillie May said--you know that's the reason she let--she always let them stay with grandma. Said, "I know Mama loves them," and everything like that. She'll miss them and-- Oh, they're big enough to help theirself, you know. Course, Aunt Suzie was able to work a little bit, you know, about a couple of years ago, you know. Cabbie (?) is a pretty good size boy now. And Donald too, you know.

(Uh-huh, you'll probably miss them if you didn't have them now, wouldn't you, Aunt Suzie?)

Ooh, yeah.

(Got used to them, huh?)

Uh-huh. All my life, I guess, I've had (inaudible) kid. I like kids.

Maggie: Why, sure.

You know how them people talks, you know.

Maggie: I know it. They say--I know, they used to say, "Aunt Suzie ain't able to take care of kids. Lillie May just make it hard on Aunt Suzie." See, she's sick in her heart. She loves them kids. You know,
