

(And you need extra?)

We need extra. But I'm not saying that we need extra to live. But we need extra to pay our personal bills. Our personal and private bills, you know.

(Like car payment, et cetera.)

Well, little small payments that we have to have. At the bank and a little extra, I guess.

(Well, when you have medical bills, do you go to the Indian hospitals?)

Yes, we do. We take advantage of the facilities that are offered to us.

(Are you happy with the Indian hospital? Do you like it?)

Well, I have no complaints as long as it's free.

(In other words, you feel like the service is adequate there. And the doctors are adequate.)

Well, it may not be adequate but it's sufficient, if you know what I mean by that. I mean it's free. (Laughter.)

(Yes. I know what you mean. In that you do not go back to college in the fall and she does go on. What do you plan to do then?)

Well, like I said, I plan to work. Give her the security that she needs. Not have to worry about our financial situation. And when she can spend most of her time on her college grade point and applying more time to her studies. And more time for her being a wife to me instead of being--than having to worry about where the next meal comes from. This is one reason that we have overlooked the fact of children. We do want children, but we can't provide for them and ourselves at the same time. We possibly could, but it would be rough. So this is one reason I have decided to let her have her education first. And then let mine come later on. Because I plan to go into the field that I've always wanted to. Something I'd get more enjoyment out of and something I know I can do a lot better than what I am
