

(Yeah. Well, was there roads going through there at one time?)

Well, there was. Only time you could get in there. That's all fenced in.

(Yeah, I know it.)

Right under the--right under the hill there. And branch goes around right over there in front of the graves. Low place back bank up across them graves. Now you could go to--them folks live right across first house when you get to Sam's house right square like that.

(Yeah.)

Well, that's Louis Shawnee's widow living there. Had a son. She was my wife's daughter-in-law at one time.

(Yes.)

Se married a fella. Must have married him for his money, he died and she married again. Married a fella name Bone. They live there now. Now Richard, he could take you down there.

(Yeah.)

Wouldn't be no one bother you. He could tell you how to get down there from there.

(Yeah.)

(Interruption)

(Mr. Fields comment not clear)

(Snail)

Yeah, that's right. When them dang Snails lived up there. All the way up the creek there, Honey Creek.

(Yeah.)

You go--you been to that Snail cemetery on 50. You just take that same--take that road. Go right on up there oh about a mile, I guess, and you turn left and come back and cross the little branch. The house is on
