

(You ever hear who this hollow was named after?)

Yes. Yeah, its named after an old man was Scraper. Used to own a farm right up the hollow here couple miles. My wife's mother's grandfather.

(Yeah.)

Name of Scraper. That what this hollow was named after. And across the hill over here about a mile and a half right straight across the hill over here. There's another hollow about three, four, five miles long. Its England Hollow. Used to be an old gentleman lived over there name of England. Its named after him.

(Yeah.)

And across west of here about two miles over the hill there, big long hollow. Its called Red Bird Hollow.

(Well.)

Used to be some old timers lived there.. Red Birds, you know. Named Red Bird.

COMMUNITY OF CHRISTIE

(Well, this community of Christie, it used to be a pretty good sized place at one time.)

Well, two or three stores, I believe most there ever was. Must have been 3 stores. One guy put in a little old Store there later on. He didn't stay long. Had two pretty good grocery stores there and a depot and the Frisco run through here.

(Well.)

Busiest little old place. Be couple stores: 'Course back then, well about always people--most people around this country here make a living. Try to make a little crops. Make ties, you know.

(Yeah.)

But their groceries with, And they shipped many and a many carload of
