

still living. I guess she's up in her nineties now. That's about the only ones lives around here, when we moved here too. Oh, I've always liked here. Lot of people been nice to us. Daughter's got a beauty shop up there, Wagoner.

(Yeah.)

She goes up there (Interruption) Over here, you know, where you turned off the highway?

(Yeah)

EARLY KILLINGS, OLD FLINT COURTHOUSE

Going to Christie. Right on up, right north, up the old Flint Courthouse, we called it. About four miles up that highway.

(Yeah, it was the scene of a lot of activity, I guess.)

Yes sir. Lot of men got killed there.

(Is that right?)

Oh yeah. Used to have court there. Wife's mother was there one time with her uncle. She was just a young women then. And they had a killing there. I forget now. I've heard'em tell it many a time.

There's been several killed there. Finally she talked her uncle in the notion. But I think the killing was all over before she could get her uncle to leave.

(Well.)

He wasn't afraid or nothing.

(Yeah.)

'Course he wasn't into it. Nearly everybody back in them days carried a gun.

(Seem like they do.)

All these old Indians, you know.

(Yeah.)
