

Woman: I don't know.

(He was sick that morning. He said he wanted to go. I was going to take him, but he said, no, his boy would come and get him and take him over there.)

(irrelevant comment)

He had two brothers, Jim and Frank. And you're Jim's boy, aren't you?

(Yeah.)

INDIAN WELDER

I got a single stop plow made out of a--I don't know. I was showing it to--the other day. I don't believe there's a blacksmith or anywhere any man in the country that can weld good as this old Indian can.

(Well.)

Its patched up. And I have a shoe, horse shoe, I guess. It has a cork and boy he's got something right here together. This here's up here.

And its a horse shoe. And I don't know why this V-shape is in there.

It must have been something wrong with the frog.

(It must have been something wrong, yeah.)

Its got a long frog. Oh about that long. Right here. And that V-shape in that frog you know. Its a shoe.

(Yeah.)

I've got'em at home somewhere hanging up.

(Them rocks down there is hard on horse's feet, I guess.)

Used to be when there was some horses there. There not any now.

(No horses anymore, huh? Is it true that a long time ago they used to use oxen in this country?)

I've seen'em.

(I've never seen that. Well.)

They don't even use no harness. They just use a chain.
