

most of these who were famous held college degrees in colleges, Boston, Cornell, Harvard, in fact, if you recall, the editor of the paper was a Princeton graduate. I think that we have so many things to be proud of in terms of history of education here in Northeastern Oklahoma. I know every time I read pertaining to history, I can fit it in cause I understand the trials and tribulations we went through. I will close with this statement, that I think the history of Eastern Oklahoma is complicated as Peyton Place.

Thank you very much.

CLOSING REMARKS BY MARTIN HAGERSTRAND

(Applause)

Dr. Underwood, we are truly grateful for your presentation tonight. I think this rounds out in a unique way some of the interesting history and highlights of Cherokee culture, and certainly gives an indication of why this history is so important and so interesting. We are grateful for your presentation.

Now, remember, next week, same location, same place, same time, the speaker is Honorable Earl Boyd Pierce, the General Council of the Cherokee tribe in which there is no greater Cherokee perhaps in terms of his dedication to the tribe and understanding and knowledge of tribal history. The other day, we heard the history from the unbiased history from the southern part of view and so on and I think we'll get an unbiased history from the Cherokee's point of view here while, next week when Pierce discusses the Cherokee tribal government, and the history of that government and so on. Are there any questions anyone wants to ask Dr. Underwood? No questions?
