

just had little family cemeteries before they started the big ones, wasn't it? And, of course, all them nearly gone now, though.)

You know, back this way--mountain and on down the hill. And across this mountain and go down the hill, there's an old place. And I've forgot what it's been named. /word not clear/ Old Lady Jason /not clear/. I believe that's his name. They got an old cemetery in there. And Charlie Smith lives close. He knows what it's--

(Yeah.)

He'll lead you.

(Charlie Smith.)

Uh-huh. Old cemetery. Way back in woods.

(That road coming in from the other side.)

Another mile.

(Yeah.)

Down the road and back this way goes to Tahlequah. Charlie Smith.

(Yeah.)

(Where did they go fishing long time ago?)

Sallisaw Creek.

(Sallisaw Creek.)

That's where we go fishing along the creek. Lake. Way back yonder.

(Yeah.)

Really fine.

(Comments not clear.)

Right up here back this way there was an old graveyard, too. They called it In deep woods down and Water down on Cemetery. You know taht?

(No.)

Well, it's down here. Old. Across the creek.

(It's back on that other road?)

Yeah. You know, you passed down there a bunch of mountain roads?
