

(What kind of churches did they have when you were a girl?)

Just like white people.

(Did you go to that?)

Hmmm..((yes)) I go to Baptist church.

(Did your family go to the Baptist Church?)

Yeah.

(Which one was that?)

Methodist..(?) Methodist preacher. My mother and (I)... they both Methodist.

So I just stay on my Baptist, I work for the Baptist church.

(What did you do for the Baptist church?)

I work for the missionary work.

(Did you help there?)

Yeah. They got me for a women's society... they do sewing work.

(What was the name of the society?)

Sewing, quilting.

(What kind of things did you do in that society?)

We sew quilts. Boxes come in from missionary. We make them out of cloth then out... what we're going to do. Pillow stuff and things for sewing... we take them out to the ladies, and they do the sewing. Quilts. We sew pretty quilts.

(What did you do with the quilts when you were through?)

I sent them out. I sell them for $15.00 quilt.

(Did a lot of the old people, when you were a girl, go to the Christian churches?)

Hmm...((yes))

(Did they have Indian churches?)

No, they all go to white peoples.

(Could you tell me anything about the Medicine Bundles? Do you know how many there are or...)

We got two of them in the house.

(Well what are they?)

I don't know what, tied up but he one we own...his (her husband's, Fred Bigman)
