

Oh, we moved different places. We went to Hanna. In town. Lived there about two or three years, went to Okmulgee. He had a job there. We lived there you know and that's where we stayed. I guess we stayed three years over there. We went to Weleetka. Got a job over there. We went there and he worked over there. They transfer him there. Dow this way was where it was. I don't remember where it was at. But I guess--and then he got kind of sickly, you know and so he never did do much. I took care of him till he passed away. I thought it was my job to do it, so I stick with it, even though I had a hard time.

(Did he farm some when you all first got married?)

Yeah. Uh-huh. He farmed a little. He always worked though, different jobs.

He always worked.

(Could you tell about the food again? That's all I think about--food, how you all fixed it--put them up and how you all fix it--can things.)

We canned a little in jars you know, but not too much. And corn, why we cooked the corn and we dried it you know by the sun. And so punkins, we used to dry punkins and dried it. And we didn't do much canning at that time you know.

(Just dried them.)

Uh-huh. That's what we done. Corn and pumpkin and all such stuff as that.

(How did you all fix the pumpkin? Did you all slice it?)

Yeah, slice them up and hang them out in the sun and dried them.

(Just laid them across something?)

Uh-huh. Yeah, or they put them on top of house. That's the way we done.

(How about the fruit?)

We dried them too.

(Oh.)

We dried peaches, and apples by the sun. They were good too. And onions-- winter onions. We used to have lot of that. What else you want to ask?

(Well, whatever you did you know, some special things, I keep saying that.
