

(Well you think you can think of something else? You want to talk about something special, anything special?)

PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE

Well I think about the church work, you know. I think I'm going to try my best to live the Christian life and go to church as long as I'm able. I want to be going to church. And that's all I study about at home. And so I guess that's what everybody thinks about. And I love all of my sisters and brothers. And I'll be that way till I die. There's lot of things you know, I have made mistakes but still I try to do the best I can. So I guess that's all.

(Do you think the love you're talking about--it's not like in the old days?)

Huh-uh. No, it isn't. They don't love one another. I sure think we don't love one another and we ought to love one another.

(That's right.)

I don't know what else to say. Maybe too much said already.

(Yeah. You'll think of it when I leave, huh?)

Uh-hum.

(Well, you've talked a whole lot and I guess you're getting tired too, aren't you?)

Not much.

(Well, you was talking about things are different from what it was when you were young in your days and now. What else do you see different about it today--some things?)

Cornbread, hominy and things like that, sofky and blue dumplings and (Creek words)--that's blue dumplings.

(Something like that.)

Yeah.

(Uh-huh. Do you still make them?)

No I haven't made any. I haven't made any of it lately. But I used to.

(speaks Creek)--that's what you call (speaks Creek).
