

there for all his life, I guess. Only had a little cabin there.

Ainsworth. Elly Ainsworth.

(Ainsworth.)

Yeah. She's got kids living in Bartlesville, yet. I know she-- last ones, boy and a girl. They was twins. Then there's two others, two other girls. She had four kids. There's Hall. John Hall.

They married Indian girls. Not Edwards, but Coonrod. Her daddy.

died. She's got a tombstone.

(Yeah. Yeah, I'd like to see that place. How far west of old Steel, Camp school would that be?)

Well, it's a mile...it's about a mile and a half.

(About a mile and a half.)

I'll tell you there's just two houses on that road and it's the second one. You go to the second one. This other house, third house, is the old Crowder place and it's up off the road. And that graveyard's right out this way from it. It's fenced off and there's one clear around it.

(Yeah. Just north of the house there.)

Yeah.

(I'll go by there sometime and look at that.)

Say, you live at where?

(I live at Chouteau.)

Well, it was built when the railroad was.

(Yeah.)

When the railroad went through there, it come in from over there in the bottom to that. They moved lot of them buildings in there.

TOWN OF ROMONA

(Yeah, Romona looks like an old place there, too.)

Well, it is.

(Wonder who's the first started settling that town?)

Well, I know who had the first blacksmith shop.
