

know him any where.

Alice: I know him well. (Sentence not clear.) He helped me a lot.

(Isn't that wonderful? Well, then, you lived on Big Creek?)

Alice: Oh, yes.

(Then, you say Centralia was shopping center?)

Alice: Yes.

(I guess it was a big town at one time, wasn't it?)

Alice: No, it was a little country town. Oh, I know every tree up through that country.

(There's a lot of wild country up there too.)

Alice: Yes.

(Well, I guess there used to be a lot of people living at Big Creek at one time?)

Alice: Oh, it was a big town there. I got word just awhile ago. There used to be a fellow living there by the name of Daniel. He died in Bartlesville. He owned a home at Centralia. When I lived out there, there were the old settlers like Sanders (not clear), and, soh, so many others.

(An old timer lived there by the name of Josh Fairlane. He still lives around Centralia. He's been there all his life.)

Alice: I never did get acquainted with him. (Words not clear)

MUDDY ROADS--EARLY DAYS--HUNGER

(I remember one thing about that country when I was a kid. It sure had some muddy roads when it rained.)

Alice: I was just thinking about that. (Laughter) Sure muddy. Now, the Bible says that before the end, we'd be walking around here and a
