

that some of the kinfolks it belonged to some of--to her.

(Well, I've reached the point where I hate to see something is old because I enjoy it now. I've reached this point.)

That's pretty old. I guess that's all the old school pictures I have in here. I wanted to show you that barber shop, didn't I?

(Yes.)

RICHARDSON KILLED A MAN IN BARBERSHOP

I'll just have to hunt it. It could be in another album. I'll have to get that back. Its got the English people in here. That was White Oak's pool hall. The old pool hall had (words not clear) Richardson killed a man in it.

(Well, my goodness.)

He was an Indian. He just went in and shot him down in cold blood.

My cousin, he's dead, and we was talking about that the other day.

He was older than I. He said he sat right there.

(Lots of things have happened in and around White Oak in its days.)

Oh yeah. Yes. And this well now this young man was drinking. He come in run everybody out. Well, this Indian owned it. He just come back and took advantage of him and just shot his head off.

(Well.)

And then his brother was a preacher. He had to lay there all night till five o'clock--see that was Indian Territory days. We had no law here.

The federal law had to come in here from I don't know where. Well, had to come from Wagoner. His body layed there till five o'clock that evening. His brother would sit there. I mean got down in that blood and pray that somebody let him have it.

FATHER CARRIED A GUN TO STORE REGULARLY

(Well. The things that have happened here.)
