

Well, I tell you now, they got so much of this here dope and stuff. People get hopped up on.

(That's right. And they don't know what they're doing.)

Yeah, that's right. Right down here at Webber Falls, a doctor down there now -- people never talk about no drug addicts being there, you know. And you know where you buy it, sell it like that.

EARLY DAY TRAPPING FOR FUR AND SKINS

(You know being this close to the river, I just wonder a long time ago was the men and boys trap fur animals a whole lot?)

Well, they was some. But not since I can remember. In time I think it used to be a good trapping.

(It must have been.)

I know there was a lot of them boats that come up, you know for fur. Yeah, it was, you know lot, lot of timber. This was big timber land.

(Well, there's still lots of fur bearing animals in the country. I see lot of possums, bucks run over in the road.)

They ain't worth killing now.

(I guess not.)

About what you get for possum, skunk or coon hide. Mink. I think mink's about five or ten dollars, something like that. Used to be thirty-five and forty.

(Uh-huh.)

Some of them six or seven. Possum, must be fifty cents up to dollar and half-two dollars.

(And at one time, they used to sell coyote hides too, didn't they?)

Yeah. I think they did.

(I see a lot of them run over in the road, now days. Coons, possums -- .)

There'll be a coon down here on these ponds on the prairie, you see. See a coon they won't eat hardly anything but what they catch. Then they got
