

to go where the water is. They wash that and then they eat it.

(Yeah. No, the days of trapping fur animals I guess is gone. But I guess at one time lots of boys made their loot.)

Made their money. I know us boys did. Why we'd get out and catch a few possums. We'd get a little money, you know. There was a lot of people had tree dogs you know. They'd go out and try that. That's way they'd make a living. They'd catch possum and coons and skunks. Most all of your possums you know will cut the flesh side out. Muskrats you done them that way. But a coon you know, usually you stretched them out in a, whatever you could. Then you put them on boards. Stretched them on the side of the wall.

(Yeah.)

(End of Interview.)
