

(How long did they have a store here?)

Since from about 1918 till about three years ago.

(Well, till about 1966 then?)

Uh-huh.

(Well, that was a long time then for a store then.)

Used to be two stores there. There was one on up above there where the next house was where it originally started. Then they moved it down where it is now. Then on just across the creek there was another one there for about six years.

MORE ABOUT QUALLS

(In other words then, Qualls has been quite a little community at one time.)

Yeah, at one time, that whole building down there looked like a barn sittle out there.

(Yeah)

From that old camp store building. There was a cotton gin, the rest of it, and that sit up on posts. They've taken it down and made this store building out of it. That must have been along about 1922. Along in there. Cotton gin belonged to old man Jim Hudson.

(Well)

He lived over there in that white house across the road there many years ago.

(And your schools, I know Qualls has had a school up there.)

Qualls had a school there. My father went to school up there. But wasn't the building that was there now. It's rock building there. At first there was alog building.
