

(Well)

Funny to see a full-blood, bald head.

(Ike Secondine?)

Ike Secondine with his wife. (Not clear), another name there. (Tape skip Wilson. That must be Andy's daddy. Irvin Wilson. Now, that's my father-in-law, my husband's father. He come from (name not clear) Kansas. (Sentence not clear) Gladys Beard, Ivy Ingram, Luch Harrison, Mary Ketchum. Mary Ketchum she was a good lady. Liza Ketchum and Silas Marshall. That was a good old man too. But I just barely can remember him.

(Well)

Jim Secondine and Mary Marshall, Arizona Secondine. This must be Ike and Liza's children. They had six children. William Armstrong, Margy Miller and Ida Miller and Sarah Ketchum. There were six.

(Not Clear) Oh, reckon that could have been Armstrong?

(It could have been.)

Was it hard for you to find-

(Some of 'em was awful hard.)

Oh, I know it, And Stephen Divine, now that's him.

(Stephen Divine?)

Stephen Divine. He died in 1917. I can remember back. It was while the war was going on. Edna Divine 1912. Could-that have been Aunt Mary? Has she been dead that long? There's no other Divines here. That would have had to be her. Edna Mae, I guess. Everybody called her Aunt Mary. 1912. I guess that would have been her. No, not if she was born in 1897.

(Tonguenexies. Where was their home place?)
