

I don't--I guess she was an Indian too. Here's Isaac Walker.

(Were the Longbones also over in here or where they from Washington county?)

Well, some of the Longbones lived here.

(Well, that's what I thought.)

Yeah, they did. There was Susie and Frank Longbone. And they lived right out, I think they lived out here on the creek., Out here on California Creek. There's Simon Secondine. Died in 1908. That was Ike Secondine's brother. Their son is buried by the railroad tracks. They never did move it.

(I reard about that.)

John Big Saddle, poor little old Uncle John Big Saddle. His name was Big Saddle. And you know as long as he lived he'd still wear those old cavalry boots with the white stripe down the side.

(Yeah)

He never wanted to give 'em up and he wore those clothes. He was so old and frail looking.

(An old Civil War veteran.)

Yes. Company B of the 16th Kansas Cavalry. Yes, sir, I can just see him now.

(Oh, some of those old timers were really colorful.)

Well, yes he was and being a full-blood he didn't like to talk English and he was the funniest little old man. He was small, frail looking. Here is Townsend Everett, Thomas Everett, Calvin C. Everett Jr. and Ed Brown. There is several Brown's but Ed Brown, they lived in Pryor.
