

"I'm so glad you're not going to bury dad back at the Divine cemetery. They just don't take care of it. And he said, "We just live so far away we can't come here and take care of the cemetery."

(Yes, that's right.)

Yes, as far as I know, they (static). She has--oh, she knows a lot of other people and that sort of thing, you know. She has some pictures and I--somebody came with one (not clear) picture. Was I looking for picture when you was here?

(Yes)

Well, you know, I never did find it. And I saw my little daughter down at Owasso and I ask her. She said, "Mother I think you let Virginia have that picture. I was the baby." And see Russell would have been about 7 or 8 years old. She said, "You let Virginia take that picture." She was going to have a picture made off of it. But I couldn't find that picture that day. You know, I couldn't find it. And I got to thinking. So Ida told me that I let Virginia have it. Now that's an old picture.

THE DIVINE CEMETERY ESTABLISHED IN 1870

(At the Divine cemetery do you have any idea when-what it might have been established? What period?)

Oh, lord, I sure don't. What is the oldest grave that you find?

(Somewhere's in 1870, I believe.)

Yes. You just never give that a thought to which down here was the oldest grave.

(Well, as well as I remember, that was somewhere in the 1870's.)

Well, yes here's an 1889-1872. That was--
