

Uh-huh. Yeah, they used a lot of Vicks. And now everybody gets alcohol. Well, that's what I do. My knees ache sometime or my hands. I just use that alcohol.

(Does that relieve it some?)

Yeah. That's--but I don't use any kind of aspirin or no kind--only pills that I got from the doctor. That's all.

(For your diabetes and everything?)

Yeah. Uh-huh.

IMMEDIATE FAMILY LIFE

(Well, after you met your husband, you all got married. You'd been living out there in the country, you said, in a log house with your family?)

Yeah, we lived in a log house out there for a long time.

(Then did you all move on in with--into town or did you continue to live out in the country?)

No, we lived out there in town until my husband left me. Well, my youngest boy, we was living on Granny Tokity place on the side of the hill.

(Granny who?)

Granny Tokity. Nanny Tokity. You might her.

(Nanny Tokity?)

Uh-huh. Walter Peck's mother. Well, we left here, we living out there Big Springs. She had an old crib. Log crib, used out there. Used to log cribs at that time. Well, that's where we lived. And that's where my baby boy was born. In that old crib. Everybody says "You wouldn't think there's a little young baby in that old log house is it?" So that's where he was born.
