

in this stage (green) but the worms have got this one. You catch them before the worms get them, they'll make a big sound. Sould like a rattle-snake.

(So you get them green and let them dry?)

Yeah, you let them dry. Hang them up. The worms ain't got them yet.

Now, you let that dry, that'll make a good sound. After they're dry.

I guess you can transplant them, the seeds. I never have tried it, but I imagine...

SKUNK BERRIES:

(Skunkberries?)

Skunkberries, yeah. They'll be ripe this month. Next month they'll fall.

It's a good time to get them now. They use them for flavor. They turn red and you pick them off. Pick off the best ones and then pound them.

And then you boil some corn meal or gravy, and after you pulverize them and put them in there and add sugar to them, boy they're tart, you know.

I mean they're good and I'd like to get hold of some of them. Maybe a week after this pow-wow we'll go gather some of them. That way I'll show you how to prepare them.

BLACKJACK:

And then they on top of that I got to get some of them blackjack leaves.

They'll be ripe next month in July. They use them leaves where they go to peyote meetings. They use them rolled. You seen them. They use them just when they have them ceremonies. Course some guys use them in town

I seen them use them in town. They smoke them. I don't smoke them. I ain't got the habit. I ain't smoke maybe one cigarette a day. But nighttime boy I'm a chain smoker at night. It ain't no habit. I can do without tobacco, but I don't know, you ain't a man unless you smoke. It's
