

according to the Apache. It's because I don't know if you smoke or not,
I don't think you guys smoke.

(I'm trying to quit smoking). (Beals)

(I smoke.) (Baugh).

Well, you're a man. According to the Apaches, you're a man if you smoke. You don't smoke, they say, you're a queer. Heh, heh, that's according to the Apaches. There's something wrong with you if you don't smoke. I don't know, it's just a belief. Just like number 13 or black cat. But man or wellianyboddy got a habit. I seen ladies smoking, some woman say if a woman smokes she's a queer. But I tell you, it's just a matter of taste. Habit. Well, you can believe it or you don't have to. It's just like anything else, you just have to believe it or you don't have to.

CEDAR:

(Cedar) Sad, or you got bad feelings. That cedar supposed to..

(Mountain cedar?)

Yeah, now this cedars out here, it's got a different fragrance. Therefore I say I could get you some there or over there. We'll go up to the house and get my axe and put that hoe back and run over there and I'll cut you some of it.

(OK, we'll go after some of it.)

Yeah. Stobs and tent poles, they're the best.

(Mountain cedar, chinaberry?)

TAPE RUNS OUT

(Do Apaches marry Apches often today?)

No, very seldom. If they know well, they know one anothers kind, they don't approve of that. Oh, they get married but like I said, nowadays you can marry your own.. or your own cousin or..back in the old days
