

(Yeah. Yeah, I've heard 'em mention Peggs Prairie.)

Yeah, they'd go plumb in on Peggs Prairie.

(Yeah, and Lowrey Prairie.)

Uh-huh, Lowrey.

(Well, there must have been a lot of people living around Gideon in those early days.)

Them days why that country just thickly settled. Them roads just went all through that country, course it was stone, wagon roads, full of rocks and things like that.

(Yeah.)

They're ain't nothing there. People just all fenced off.

(Oh it's all fenced up in big pastures in there now. There's not too many people any more.)

We can't even get up to our old home place over--it's all erased. And we moved there, I believe it was in 1900.

(Well.)

Well, that's about two and a half miles north of here.

(Yeah. That'd be on up towards Blackbird Creek.)

It's up on Black Bird Creek.

(Yeah. That's a beautiful place.)

We lived there. We's all reared up there and all married off while we was there. It's growed up. It got picked up now. Old house tore down.

We can't even get in that old home place and look around.

(Well now--were the Parris family, were they up in there, some of 'em?)

They lived right there this side of back little south of Gideon there.

(Yeah.)

All the Parris' lived around there. Lived south and southwest of Gideon.
