

(Well.)

I've read about him.

(Interruption)

(It is?)

Uh-huh.

(Yeah.)

That's my mother's sister's boy. (Interruption) I guess round about the same age.

(Yeah, I guess so.)

I treat them money every time I go over to Tahlequah. Last couple of times I haven't saw him.

(Well.)

I think he was deacon or something in that full-blood church up there at Moody. Deacon or something.

(Yeah. Well, that's the one that some of 'em, some of the full-bloods call the Beamer Church, I think.)

I don't know if I ever heard it called Beamer. I've heard there used to be a lot of Beamers lived around there. It might be.

(Yeah, that old Moody convention ground, you know, it shows on the old Cherokee Nation map.)

It does.

(Yeah,)

Well, that church house still standing.

(Still standing.)

Yeah.

(Yes sir. Yes sir, there's been lot of things took place up and down the Double Springs Creek, Fourteen Mile Creek.)
