

(Much static. Sentence not clear.)

Mrs. That old man I was telling you about--he's just full of information about that country around--the early days.

Bill. We was going to get with him and get him to talk.

Mrs. I don't know if he's worked down there or not but he knows where they are and he told Bill one day that sometime he could go with him down there. But uh--

Bill. 'Cause his mother remembers my great grandfather.

Mrs. Uh-huh.

(Yeah.)

Mrs. Mrs. (name not clear) died a couple years ago, I believe--

YOUNGER BEND COUNTRY--OUTLAWS

(You know supposedly there's a uh quite a historic place way down south of Muskogee, between Muskogee and Webber Falls and I read this in somebody's historical article and they call it the Taylor State Stop Inn.)

Mrs. Yeah.

(Which must have been one of few--stops across the country in those early days and apparently there was lots of activity there and I haven't found anyone that can--)

Mrs. Now Carl Ralph can tell you about that place--

(He would probably know?)

Mrs. On across the river over there was his other place, his car

(words not clear)

(Uh-huh)

Mrs. And so he would know about it 'cause he is quite good at remembering things and yet he (much static) and his father was a doctor early day doctor down in there and he owned the drug store in Porum and he doctored down in there when they drove teams and buggies you know. I
