

(Somewhere a great big stone building, I think just after I turned off the highway--was that the school?)

That's the colored school.

(Well.)

The name of it was the Friendship School.

(The Friendship School.)

And then there was, they built the new school over east now.

(Uh-huh.)

After integration, they all had to go to school together. We didn't have enough of colored students here to make--teach a school.

(Yes.)

There was thirteen, I think. At first they was going to New Hope School out here and that was another colored school---

(New Hope?)

Yes, New Hope.

(Now, how far out is New Hope?)

New Hope is about two miles ahead from where (not clear).

Unidentified voice: Did you come in from the other way?

(No, I came in from---)

Unidentified voice: From this way?

(From Muskogee.)

Anytime you want to go, you tell me and I'll take you all.

(Well, I surely want to see a lot of these places.)

We'll take you to New Hope cemetery and right on by on the way.

NAMES OF FAMILIES WHO LIVED IN THE AREA

Unidentified voice: And that other one, that's old what's his name, John Ross.
