

(Where was it located?)

Julius: Well, you know where on way to Centralia, there's a big house on the north side of the ridge on top of the hill?

(Yeah.)

Julius: Well, it was a mile west and three miles north, I believe.

(I've heard of it--never been there though. There was a store too there someplace at one time.)

Mrs. Pennington: Yes, I remember that.

(Now, Sequoyah School, I wonder when--how long it existed?)

Mrs. Pennington: Well, really, I don't know. You know that some one live in it now. And there was a school on the highway this way, and someone made it into a home. What was that called, Julius?

Julius: I don't remember.

(Wouldn't have been Cobb, would it?)

Mrs. Pennington: No, Cobb's out here by the Eastern Hospital.

(What else is out--I--Kelso, north, isn't it?)

Julius: Yes, out east of railroad tracks.

Mrs. Pennington: Anyway, where we used to turn south when they was building the dam. It's in there somewhere. I just can't remember exactly.

Julius: (not clear) I don't know either now. Somebody here in Vinita could tell you.

(Back over there, I think it was in Craig county was a school they called Success. And they tell me the building is still standing and is vacant. And I must get by there and get a picture of it before it's moved away or blown down, burned up or is lost.)

I remember it, but I don't know where it was.
