

And boy, he had her this way and her back to him. And she was screaming and kicking. --next morning. And he was on the school board and so was Lee Couch's dad, Raymond Couch. Uncle Ben, he saw 'em both coming, so he decided he'd come down and see what it was all about.

Jimmy told him. Said, come on, I'm going to show you what I can do to you. About that time, Uncle Ben rode up there. Said, oh, I'm going on, I've got to go on to Big Cabin. I've got some business down there. He took off.

TOWN OF BIG CABIN

(Has Big Cabin been a town at one--in its day? Must have been.)

It wasn't any bigger than it is now. It was quite a hay center.

(Ocoee. What all did they have down there?)

Hardware store. I think they had a blacksmith. Right on the south side of the street.

(Was that close to Billy Friend's old home place?)

Half a mile south.

/Interruption/

(Dickerson. Yeah.)

He lived right across over here. Straight east of here. House isn't there anymore. Old Winchester Scott lives right on east of him.

He was one-eyed and never come out of the house didn't have a .30-30 in his hand.

/interruption/

(Yeah, Levi Jenkins was one, I guess.)

...they didn't make then. That dog killed Glenn Taylor. Let me tell you, there was a-- I would just like to know how many men he's killed. But you know, the odd thing about him, he did all--the men he killed was right at the full moon. Sure like to kill... See, other than what we knew he would take the body out there to those hills.

That deep well, deep dug well there. Deep well there. I expect
