

like up there?).

It was something kinda like Spavinaw on the bank of the creek. They moved, it though when the lake came in, way upon the hill. I guess a couple of miles.

(I bet that was a pretty place, wasn't it?)

Yes, it was.

(In fact, all this country around here is real pretty. All through this country, everywhere I go I find interesting stories about the old places, the people that lived there, and the things that they have done. Now, of course, I guess at one time, well, there still is a lot of Indians through this country.)

It's all Indians.

(All Indians.)

I don't think there was but three white families in Spavinaw and near Spavinaw. We moved here--was all Indians. Now, we came to here in 1895. But we all got sick and they had no doctors here. We left and then in 1900, we come back. (Sentence not clear)

(Now, let's see, that was Bob and Henry. They was U.S. marshals.)

Yes, they were deputy United States marshals. When they was huntin' the Wickliff boys.

STORY OF WICKLIFF BOYS--OUTLAWS

(Now, the Wickliffs lived in this country for years---)

Yes, I grew up with two or three of them. They were outlaws. It was just forced on them. They didn't intend to be outlaws. It was just forced on them over a fight.

(Well, it's tragic the way some of those things happen, isn't it?)
