

They had a commissary building down there where they had the store.

Did you see that?

(No, I didn't.)

You didn't see the old jail?

(No, I didn't see that.)

You didn't see the jail?)

(No, was the jail in the commissary building?)

No, the jail was right left of the old Saline courthouse, just west of it, a big spring there, one the big branch run down in.

(I would like to have lived and seen it in that day. It would have been interesting.)

Yes, I've been there lots of times.

MORE CEMETERIES - HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

(Well, back in those early days, they didn't have these good roads.

It must have been hard gettin' across---)

Yes; back in old horse and buggy days. 'Course I never did go down there then. I was there when Model-T cars were come in. I got a car. I would go down there then. Yes, Mrytle has a first cousin at Ketchum and he used to come over and have me and we used to go over and clean the graves off in the spring. Cut the weeds off of them and all.

(You know, up here at old Eucha, there used to be an old Indian cemetery there, and then a white folks cemetery. And I understand they moved the Indian cemetery, but they left the other one.)

Yes, I guess they moved the one---

(What was the name of the one they left there, do you remember?)

No, I don't remember the name of that---

(Would it have been the Phillips?)

Phillips? The name of the cemetery? Yes, maybe it was. It was just
