

Wing was his great--

(Great grandfather.)

Great uncle.

(Great uncle.)

Did you read this book somebody wrote about him. (Interruption)

(Yeah.)

It was pretty close relation to Zeke.

(Well.)

She was married to him before she married grandpa.

(Yeah.)

And she evidently knew him and old Peggy pretty well. Peggy was about his third wife. She said he's crazy.

(Zeke Proctor was quite a personality in his day.)

I guess he was.

(Lot has been written about him too.)

Said he had spell, you know, that he'd just get completely out of control.

(Yeah.)

When he'd come in, he'd attempt to kill old Peggy. Yeah, he was--

(Where was his home country?)

It was southwest of Watts thereon the river down by the Foster ford.

(Yeah.)

On one of your trips over there we'll go down by there.

(All right.)

I can show you just about where his old place was.

(I'd like to see it.)

One of his granddaughters lives there at Watts. She's such a damn liar you can't believe nothing she says.

(Yeah, Zeke Proctor must have been a shrewd man. He wasn't dumb by any standards.)