

I remember when that railroad hadn't been in there, you know, when they first started running trains over it.

(Yeah. Stilwell didn't start settling up until after the railroad came through then.)

No, it didn't. Those two stores was there. Well, one of 'em is right back here on the highway.

(Yeah.)

Before the railroad went through there. I don't remember when the railroad went through there. I know Brother Henry did. I used to hear him talk about it.

(Do you remember who run the stores?)

Yeah. Tom Roach and old Frank Cowen. (interruption)--this road, Jim.

OLD HORN ROAD

This is what they call the old Horn Road.

(The old Horn Road. This is one that came from the Caney Creek country up to Stilwell.)

Yeah. Either go this way or you had to go that way.

(Yeah.)

Only two ways you had to get to Stilwell.

(Was there a Hummingbird Springs in this country at one time?)

I've heard that lot of times, Jim, but I never did know where the Hummingbird Springs was. (Interruption) The old Clevenger Springs.

(Yeah.)

Clevenger people lived here years and years ago. The younger generation calls it the Hayes Springs, but the old ones call it the old Bradley Spring. Old Henry Bradley used to live right at the head of it.

(Was there a family by the name of Horn that lived down?)

Yeah, old man Tom Horn lived over--we go right by it.
