

them will bring me.

(Mr. Maker: That's at my mother's.)

Mrs. Green: Way out there. They'll bring me.

Mrs. Maker: All right. We'll have dinner over here.

Mrs. Green: Over here. At the noon well they can bring me down there. See, I could come home and stay and wait and then I can come over there. And so (Indian words) (Indian name) early.

He don't wait, you know. (Indian sentence) That's what he wants. (Indian sentences) There's a prayer in there too. Behind that. After he's named, well, there's a prayer there.

(In Osage) Have to be made first. (sentence in Osage) When you talk about them, they're here but they can't tell you

'cause they're--they want to tell you. They can't tell you.

And you can't see them. The spirit comes in, he said. (sentence in Osage) Be sure that you make it right. I been taking you around and I want you to have this. (Name in Osage) Otis, he heard him. He had'em to give me that. (sentence in Osage)

He said they better see about what they got, future (words in Osage) he said. (sentence in Osage) He might understand but he had to go in the English way. Speak English to them. To have'em to understand, but (finishes in Osage) Anything like that. Now he name, (Osage name) Frances. He named Dudley and here they are. Then you turned around and she wants you to name her nieces. You did. She visited other couple of weeks ago. She wanted you to name her nephew. Well you went down there and named it and had dinner over there. And Katherine come from Tulsa and she said she sure like to record that. She didn't bring her recorder to record what you said. But most of them from your mother's side. Just I and Katherine, and you (words in Osage) I went down there and named him. But he was wake though when I went. She wanted him to have a Osage name. (begins sentence in Osage) like him. Our way is (Osage name)

(sentence in Osage) They give'em grown man's name. And I don't know what they do use to you and (Osage name) would--which name--

But I got the name to call him. Whether you two--I want his grandfather's name or his uncle's name or back further name.

(Osage word) He went all through that background. (Osage word)

We don't understand that. Lot of us don't understand that. And
