

EARLY CHILDHOOD AT CARNEGIE: (Annie is 65 years old.)

(Where were you born, Annie?)

Southwest of Mountain View.

(And who were your parents?)

My daddy's named Billy Sumty.

(And what was your mother's name?)

Her name's Bessie.

(Well, do you know her maiden name before she was married, her full name?)

No.

(And they were both Kiowa?)

Um-hum.

(Was your father from Oklahoma?)

Yeah.

(How long did you live down there at Carnegie?)

I just grew up there. I was born in Mountain View, and we moved back home to our home and that's where I stayed.

(You moved back to Carnegie when you were very young?)

When I was a baby.

(What kind of house did you live in?)

A six room house.

(Is the house still there now?)

Um-hum. But it's different now. A bungalow this time. It was built in a square--across. This is one room, two big rooms in the middle, two on each side. (She indicates the arrangement with her hands.

(Did you have any brothers or sisters?)
