

SENECA AND WYANDOTTE TRIBES

(She's been there a long time. Who is the Seneca chief now?)

Vernon Crow.

(Vernon Crow. He lives up at Wyandotte?)

Miami.

(Miami.)

I don't know just what his address is. You can find it in the phone book.

(Yeah. And the Wyandottes. Do they still have a chief?)

Not that I know of.

(I've asked about it and no one seems to know. 'Course there's not many of the Wyandottes left up in there.)

Let's see now. Seem like there was somebody. Kind of an acting business chief. Can't think of his name now. I think it's Guy Throm(?)

(How many Senecas are there left now?)

Well, let's see. Last time I heard on rolls was 1700.

(Well, you still have pretty sizeable.)

Yeah, that's a pretty good size. That's counting all the half-breeds, quarter-breeds.

SENECA WOMEN ARE TRYING TO PRESERVE INFORMATION CONCERNING PLANTS USED FOR MEDICINE AND FOOD

(I was reading in the paper here while back. There was an article about two of the Seneca women up in there. And how they were trying to preserve, oh use of the medicinal plants. Different things that the old time Indians used to use for Food, and to eat, and also things that they could--oh make baskets and things out of. And it was real interesting.)

Remember the names?

(Seem like one of 'ems last name was Eagle and another one her name was-- last name was Young. I don't remember their first names, though.)
