

When the Christian people began to go Church they were having meeting at that time they were no kind of baptistism so one day they was having meeting one got up and talk and got angry and walked away and cross the creek and tripped fall in deep water and he come up and walk on out and they laugh at him and said he must be Baptist when he went on he builtd a Baptist Church. And again they were having meeting and one got up and talked no one listening to him so he got angry and start walk away. One woman was washing her pots she was pouring the water out he was walking by and she pour<sup>2</sup> water on him and they were watching him and they laugh he must be Methodist when he went he had an idea and he built Methodist Church and he baptist him pour the water on him. And again they were having meeting again one got up and talkd and no one was listening to him and he got angry and he walked away. One woman she was sprinkling water he was walking by and she sprinkle on him and they laughed at him. And they said he must be Presbyterian and so he went and built him a Presbyterian Church and they sprinkle water on him and Baptist em. So they have a meeting again one woman got up and she talk but no one was listening so she got angry and she walked away and a man come along with a big black pot. She brush the pot and got her dress black and they said she must be Catholics. So they built Catholic Churches. So we think this is it all happen. The is the ole Indian Story.
