

on up to beans.

(And did you can and dry stuff?)

Yes.

(Put away for the winter?)

Yes, but it was at the time I dried it, we dried it.

(How did you dry it?)

Well, sack it up and hang it up in the trunk.

(Would you, like beans, break them up and put them on a roof -- )

No.

(Or string them -- )

No, we just--we always hulled them.

(Oh, you hulled them.)

Hmm-humm, but for several moons I been canning, you know.

(Putting them in cans (jars), uh-huh.)

Sometimes, I always take notion--'cause the kids got deep freeze, you know, I put them in.

Unidentified voice: (Not clear)

(His mama--his mama did?)

Well, be surprised you keep that long, stuff in it. For just-- you know, our kids, they don't take care of nothing.

Unidentified voice: I know it. They don't ever take care of nothing, and-- but now --

Unidentified voice: But now --

And I was sitting out there when you were sitting there. He was sitting over there.

(What's his name?)

Earl Hancock (?)
