

(Word not clear) boys turned out wrong.

(Yeah.)

'Course what they done. The government owned 'em $1500 and wouldn't pay 'em. They just went in town and robbed the bank.

(Well.)

That's how they turned out, you know. We've got some pictures of my dad and Emmett Dalton standing together. While he was out there he went on out and visited Emmett. Emmett was in the real estate business at that time, in 1922. Had quite a visit. Dad was standing under a big orange tree holding an orange like this guy (word not clear) And Emmett Dalton is standing there with him. 'Course Emmett died later on and--

(Yeah.)

Dad died in '31. Like I said when Tom came around the last time, in 1920.

STORY OF PISTOL PETE - INCIDENTS

(Well, then your dad knew those fellas then up in that country.)

Oh, goodness he knew -- you know old Pistol Pete. You've probably heard of him.

(Yeah, I've heard of him)

Frank Eaton.

(Yeah.)

I read his book and we went down there to see him. My son-in-law when he was down, kinda interested in all this story stuff. We went down there. And he ask Pistol Pete, can you still pull that gun quick as you could. He said I can pull just as fast as ever. He was about 95 then.

(Yeah.)

And you know that old man didn't wear no glasses. He had been hit with an emery stone and sight was off a little bit. But he took that (word not clear). Ripped the whole thing off of it without any trouble. And this horse he had,
