

Well that old man come up there, and some guys from back east was there. They found out who he was and all about him. Heard, you know. Probably read his book. He said, "You know, them damn fools wanted me to go back east. They said they'll give me five hundred dollars a week to go around just let people look at him," you know. He said, "I got some chores at home to do." He said, "I can't go."

(Where was Goodnight's home?)

Well, it was in Guthrie, I believe now.

(In Guthrie.)

If I remember its just--let's see, Perkins is down east of Guthrie.

(Yeah.)

Yeah. It was in Guthrie. We went over there. Wait a minute. I forget--

(not clear) When they captured the first one. They one that shot his dad.

He was sitting on the front porch. We walked up. He said, "You son-of-a-bitch.

You're the one that shot my dad. Caused my dad death." And it might have been Frank Eaton. I don't remember his name. He might have been named after his dad.

I don't rightly recall that name. This man had a Winchester laying on his lap. Oh, he shot him right in the rib cage twice before he could even raise that Winchester up. He went right on and shot the next one. He found--what tickled me see. He'd go to some Indian to find out where he was at.

(Yeah.)

DELAWARE INDIANS ARE SCATTERED IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF OKLAHOMA

You've seen these little funny pretty strings on this bands that these Indians wear. Well, I thought they was just (words not clear).

(How scattered are the Delawares now? Are they scattered over quite an area northeast Oklahoma?)

I know some Delawares that live now in Colorado.
