

See, he's Cherokee.

(Yeah. And what was his name?)

Martin Jones. He's buried over here to--not Prairie Grove. What's the name of that? Hickory Grove cemetery.

(Yeah, I know where it is.)

And for years we didn't know where he was buried at. We finally found this.

(Well.)

That's an old one.

(It certainly is.)

She gave me the original picture. She had her one made off of it. Which I'd rather had this one.

(Why surely.)

I've got an old time watch. Wear these, you know, they'd pin 'em on. That's an old timers.

(Well. Yeah, I remember when school teacher had that little watch hanging from their dress.)

That's real old too.

(That certainly is. You don't see these anymore, do you?)

An old friend gave me that.

(Well.)

And that old tray down in there. The woman that owned that is way over a hundred years old. Would be if she was alive. That's an old timer.

(That's a beautiful lady's watch there. Waltham.)

That's a good kind.

(It certainly is.)

One of the hands is broke. I could have it fixed.

(Why do. Well.)

I may wear it.
