

But, you know, people had ways of entertaining.

(They made their own entertainment. You couldn't run to town to go to the show or anything. You didn't have telephone or radio or television then. Many people said they got along a lot better in those days than they do now. They enjoyed--)

In a way they did. They didn't have as much money, but I think they had more true happiness.

(They did. They had more concern and love for their folks and friends and neighbors than they do now.)

Talking about old timers: Have you been in Fairland lately?

(Not lately. )

Somewhere in Fairland I came by it yesterday where there's bunch of old buggies and hacks. And I mean they go way back. Look like they're well preserved. Look like they just been (word not clear). They just got 'em lined up out there in the yard.

(Well.)

You must go through there this evening in order to see 'em. I thought that was just real interesting.

TRAVEL BY WAGON TO VISIT FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

(Yeah, I like to see those things.)

I remember folks telling about when the Indian first made their (word not clear). Well, I think all they had to do was just hook up the wagon. I was in there and we all went. Made the (not clear). I wasn't very big.

(Heck, that's a long way too, isn't it?)

My yes.

(Going in a wagon.)

But, you know, most people them days on the farm though, had good teams.
