

He died, you know.

(Well no.)

His boys holding the revival here, the youngest one, he was just a little tot you know.

(Yeah.)

He grew up, about that high. The last time I seen him in, He was at Saddle Creek you know, playing around. Now he is a preacher, he preach the first time, I heard him preach the first time, last night.

(Yeah, ah-hum)

Yes sir, that McIntosh boy call them Cap McIntosh, Call him Jones McIntosh.

(Yeah.)

He died. And I told them --

(Yeah, and there was another one, that I know, the younger one.)

A whole lot of them McIntosh.

(Yeah, and Dode McIntosh is chief, and I know him.)

Yeah. I knowed he is chief, and I've seen him 'bout one time. And that was one night, when McIntosh that died over in Deadwood Spring.

(Yeah.)

At Silver Spring.

(Ah-hum. The Creek Nation, they had a lot of good men, chiefs in charge of the, everything. I was looking at this picture over at Okmulgee.

Lots of smart ones.)

I used to go up to council house.

(Yeah, they used to have Indian Trial over there, long time ago, I guess.)

Yeah.

(When you were a young fellow.)

That was the town I first put on a pair of shoes.
