

clear) they come in. One had --(word not clear) --they was here. They took five generations. They said she's send it to me. She had tire to send it to me. But she haven't sent it yet.

GREAT GRAND CHILDREN - SOME IN CALIFORNIA

(How many grandchildren do you have?)

I've got three in California. I've got five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, and I got four, eight grandchildren back from California.

And I got four here, that's the great-grandchildren. And I've got two great-great-grandchildren.

(Great-great-grandchildren. Oh-h-h.)

They lives on the other side of McAlester.

(Do you all have reunion sometime?)

No, not--we haven't had any in long time.

(It'd be a bunch wouldn't it?)

Yes, it would. I hate to cook for them. (Laughter)

(You wouldn't mind it if they brought food already cooked, huh?)

Last year my daughetr, her old man, they all come. They up and brought their dinner.

HAS A GARDEN - CANS VEGETABLES FOR CHILDREN - MAKES KRAUT

(What you got planted in your garden?)

I got some onions, radish, beans and peas. I'm going to have some peas about next month. I'll have lots of peas.

(You have green tomatoes?)

Yeah. Mines about that big.

(Would you sell some?)

They want me to make some chow-chow. And I told her, I says, "I ain't going pick mine." I said, "You all pick it off of yours and I'll make it." (Laughter)
